"When I wrote 'light of life for me goes out,' I meant it," Galloway said today. "When those prison doors close behind me, by life will be gone, I might as well be dead as far as living sun." Galloway wrote, "And youths in passing gaily shout; But ere life's span is half its run, The light of life for me goes out."

There was a tense moment in the crowded courtroom as Judge Stevens emerged through his chamber door to the bench. Jensen rubbed his hands together nervously and he was perspiring freely.

The offer of a 10 per cent flat increase for the anthracite workers; of the universal eight-hour day; of the right to have a union agent in the company offices for collection of union dues, which the governor made along with a tender of union recognition, and of the principle of collective bargaining, won a more than friendly reception from the union leadership. There was a growing impression that Mr. Lewis would recommend and his scale committee would grant a substantial acceptance of the proposal, and call in the orders for a suspension of work Sept. 1, if the operators consented.

Greeks To Spurn Conditions

ATHENS—It is understood here that Greece is not disposed to accept the humiliating conditions imposed by the Italian government in its note demanding satisfaction for the killing of the five Italian members of the Greco-Albanian frontier demarcation mission.

Demand Huge Indemnity

LONDON—Reuter's Rome correspondent says that the Italian demands on Greece include the following:

"But don't ever say that I contemplated suicide," he continued. "I would never do such a cowardly thing. I have made a mistake in life and I must suffer for it, and I will undergo that suffering without flinching."

"Tell the newspaper boys to cut out this 'soft stuff' about me. I don't want it. I deserve what they give me. I hold no malice toward any of these officials or toward The Capital Times. You people did only your duty."

"What is your plea?" Judge Stevens asked after the charges had been read.

Jensen, who was looking steadily at the floor, humped over and shoulders drooping, did not raise his eyes when he answered in tones scarcely audible to the spectators:

"Guilty."

With the operators, the settlement basis suggested encountered almost open hostility. Their constant stand for arbitration of all outstanding issues was almost completely neglected, and there was a disposition to consider that the proposal had not adequately measured the coal price increase which would result from the wage increase award. Governor Pinchet estimated that this and another 60 per cent, of which the operators could absorb 10 cents in lessened profits.

Mine owners themselves calculated that establishing a universal eight hour day would add almost 5 cents a ton to costs. They contended that all of the increase would have to be loaded on the domestic fuel, the steam size production of anthracite being incapable of absorbing the cost.

State Potato Men To Face Better Season

Production Reduced In Wisconsin; Good Price Looked For

A better outlook confronts potato growers of Wisconsin as the year 1923-24 shipping season opens, the state department of markets reports in its bi-monthly market bulletin issued today.

"With a greatly reduced production forecast for both Wisconsin and the United States the season starts out on a more favorable basis than last year from the standpoint of a good market," the bulletin declares. "All factors in the deal are hoping for a good price this year as all feel that both the farmers and shippers are entitled to good profits in order to help make up for the losses generally sustained during the past three seasons."

"The general condition of the crop in Wisconsin is good. Those shipping early stock are receiving good prices. Wisconsin U. S. No. 1 bulk stock in Chicago bringing $2.35 per hundredweight."

The department reports that grading regulations are again to be enforced regarding potatoes.

"Wisconsin producers and dealers have found by experience that it pays to grade and properly mark farm products," the bulletin declares. "This is largely the result of four years' work by the department, the work originally starting on potatoes."

"The enforcement of grading rules, will be continued this fall. During the marketing season, potatoes, cabbage and apple grades will be strictly enforced. Grading supervisors will be in the field to assist growers and shippers in their grading activities and to advise how products should properly be marked."

Arnold Trial Recesses Due To Bar Meet

Former Secretary of Defendant Takes Stand Tomorrow

SUPERIOR, Wis.—The trial of Victor H. Arnold, former president of the Madison Bond Co., on charges of using the mails to defraud, will be continued in federal court here Friday morning, after a day's interlude while attorneys and the judge in the case are attending sessions of the American Bar association in Minneapolis on Thursday. Jurors again will be excused at noon Saturday until Tuesday morning, and Judge C. Z. Luse will devote Labor day to hearing of other cases to make up the lost time.

With resumption of the case Friday, Miss Rose Mulvihill, former secretary of the Victor H. Arnold Co., Chicago, is scheduled to continue on the stand. While she was trustee for series 48 to 53 of the Madison Bond Co.'s collateral gold bonds, as successor to Chesney L. Much of it she knew to be in default, she testified, but always worked on the supposition that "everything was all right."

Anthony Van Edig, whose testimony was completed with a morning without cross examination, declared that as an agent of the Madison Bond Co. he had solicited stock of the concern in exchange for the notes of the Victor H. Arnold Co.

Gilbert Ross Will Be First in Series of All-Star Concerts

Local Violinist To Play In Christ Church On Sept. 25

Madison this year is to be favored with a new series of concerts—The Madison All Star Series, which will be presented in Christ Church under the management of Adrian Scott.

The first of the series will be given on September 25, when Gilbert Ross, who is known as a musical center, will play his violin in his old home town for the people with whom he grew up.

Other artists in the series are Tito Schipa, leading tenor at Ravenna, and a favorite of Chicago Civic Opera Co. Joseph Lhevinne, who comes back to Madison for the third time, has innumerable friends here. Eugene Vescey, the great Hungarian violinist, and Anna Case, who like Tito Schipa, through her phonograph records has been heard many times in Madison, but has never appeared here in person.

This series of concerts is being presented by Mr. Scott at popular prices.

If the artists will agree, special concerts will be given for children on the afternoon preceding the main concert. These concerts will be free if possible, or at a charge merely enough to cover the costs.

Dodge County Judge Flays "Liquor Dances"

WATERLOO, Wis.—Dodge county farmers who allow moonshine at their weekly barn dances were severely criticized by Judge C. M. Davison when eight alleged violators of the liquor law were arraigned before him at Juneau on Monday.

Waterloo and vicinity were included in the judge's warning that Dodge county must root out its rough barn dances and the flow of moonshine which has led to scores of arrests within the last few months. Monday was "moonshine day" in the circuit court. All the men pleaded guilty to the charges and were heavily fined.

Free State Wins Big Victory At Irish Polls

LONDON—First returns from the Irish elections indicate even a more sweeping victory for the Free State candidates than their supporters had predicted. Nearly a score of government party nominees, including almost all the cabinet ministers, have won seats by large majorities, while up to early today the election of only three Republicans was assured.

Hogs Near Appleton Victims of Cholera

APPLETON, Wis.—Two hundred and twenty hogs on the Outagamie county farm have just been vaccinated as a precaution against cholera. The work required nearly two days. The hogs were all in a healthy condition and showed no signs of the disease. The hogs on John Weber's farm, on the asylum road, affected with the disease, when vaccinated last week, have since died, making about 20 dead out of a herd of 120.

Live Wires

Need Peppy Workers For Community Union Drive Soon

Wanted—200 "live wires." This is the number of workers for the Community Union drive, Sept. 29-Oct. 8, General Chairman James R. Garver announced to his executive committee at a meeting Wednesday. "Go out and get live wires," he said.

So the committee is making this an open season for the wide-awake campaigner and completing organization for the biggest drive in the history of Madison.

This number of workers is needed, Mr. Garver pointed out, because the drive of last year fell short of its quota and the drive this year is on "trial for its life."

If the budget of $103,873 is not met this year, the drive will have been considered a failure and Madison will have to go back to each one of its 14 welfare agencies in the Community Union having its own drive, making 14 drives annually, Mr. Garver said.

Daily meetings of ward "generals" for the drive and their sub-committees are being held beginning today.

Century Magazine Has Praise For Ross Book

The Century magazine for September offers an appreciation of Prof. Edward A. Ross's book, The Old World in the New. Says the reviewer: "Economic, biological, racial, social, educational, and political aspects are discussed with the rare humaneness Dr. Ross knows how to put into his words. But it is primarily a book of thought—illumined thought. Immigration is a live subject."

Women Tell Each Other How They Have Been Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Perrysburg, O.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I suffered with pains in my sides all the time. I can't remember just how long I suffered, but it was for some time. One day I was talking with a lady I met on a car, and I told her how I was feeling and she said she had been just like I was with pains and nervous troubles, and she took the Vegetable Compound, and it cured her. So then I went and got some, and I certainly recommend it for it is good. Whenever I see any woman who is sick I try to get her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ada Frick, Route 3, Perrysburg, Ohio.

In nearly every neighborhood in every town and city in this country there are women who have been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the treatment of ailments peculiar to their sex, and they take pleasure in passing the good word along to other women. Therefore, if you are troubled in this way, why not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

Local Masons Honor Ames at Oregon Today

Madison and Evansville Lodges in Services For Veteran

OREGON—A large representation of Madison Masons attended the memorial services for Nathaniel Ames held at his grave here this afternoon. The services were under the auspices of the Evansville lodge of which Mr. Ames was a member at the time of his death 60 years ago.

John Corseot attended the services as the only living Mason who attended the rites 60 years ago as a brother member at that time. C. W. Netherwood is the only other person now living who attended the funeral but was not a member of the Masonic order at that time. The program rendered at the site of the grave of the former Revolutionary veteran was very touching as his grandchildren and other relatives stood near the grave of a man who spent part of his life of 102 years in the service of the youngest republic in the world. Mr. Ames at the close of the war was honored by shaking hands with Pres. George Washington.

The program was as follows: America, by the Masonic quartet; Invocation by Rev. George E. Hunt, Madison; Masonic Record, H. B. Durner, Evansville; Family record, W. L. Ames, grandson, Oregon; Benediction.

Bids on Wells Public Works Board Meets Sept. 1 To Award Contract

Bids for two new artesian wells authorized by the city council will be opened by the board of public works September 11 at 2 p. m. Plans and specifications for the work have been forwarded to all well-drilling companies interested.

The total cost of the two wells is estimated at about $50,000. One well will be built on Knickerbocker street between Monroe and Cedar streets, near the site of the proposed new pumping station which will be built should the city determine to continue the artesian well system. The second well will be located on South Murray street near Washington avenue, where the city at present owns land with buildings. The building is of circular construction and well preserved eliminating the expense of constructing a new one to house the pumping machinery.

Both wells will be 16 inches in diameter and about 300 feet deep.

Storm Causes Big Damage at State Fair

Repairs Made; Expect Record Crowd At Expo Today

(By the Associated Press) MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Idea 1 weather conditions greeted the Wisconsin state fair visitors today, with every prospect that Milwaukee day would not be spoiled by rain. Yesterday, with the largest crowd of the week, totaling 44,306, a severe storm broke after five heats of harness races had been completed, drenching thousands of the visitors. The track, before the storm, was in ideal condition and in the first heat of the 2:05 pace Julia M. Direct clipped off a mile in 2:02 3/4. She crossed the finish line without being extended, and gave promise of better things when the racing was abruptly ended.

The severity of the storm caused considerable damage to the tented city at the fair, but repairs were made last night and this morning. The heavy rain, accompanied by wind and hail, lasted more than an hour.

Wingers in the inter-county spelling, arithmetic and writing contests were decided late yesterday. Esther Ziebarth of Eau Claire county won the first prize with grades of 94 in arithmetic, 98 in spelling and 93 in writing, giving her an average of 95 2/3.

Blanche Sweet to Star in N. Y. Stage Success

Will Take Lead in Eugene O'Neill's "Anna Christie"

To Blanche Sweet has fallen the honor of playing the screen version of the play "Anna Christie." This part is considered the "plum" of the motion picture parts of 1923. Her husband, Marshall Neilan, has consented, at the request of Thomas H. Ince, to postpone "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," in which his wife was to have starred, to allow her to take the part of "Anna."

Pauline Lord created the part in the spoken drama and it ran for two years in New York and then took London by storm. "Tess" will follow the filming of "Anna Christie."

Miss Sweet, who is a D. W. Griffith "discovery" with Mary Pickford and the Gish sisters when she was known as "The Biograph Girl," has just finished her characterization of the leading role in Goldwyn's "In the Palace of the King."

SEYFFERTITZ MAY DIRECT

Gustave Seyffertitz, who has been working in "Under the Red Robe," may direct after the picture is finished. It will not be his first work in that role, as he directed pictures in which Lila Lee and Alice Calhoun starred.

MOVIE GOSSIP

Two new pictures for First National releases are "Thundergate," a picturization of Sidney Herschel Small's "The Lord of Thundergate," a story of Chinese and American life, and "The Age of Desire," a screen version of Dixie Willson's "Dust in the Doorway." Joseph de Grasse is directing the former and Frank Borzage the latter.

JACKIE FINDS REAL FRIENDS IN CIRCUS

He is also befriended by Luigi, an old circus clown, and Luigi's niece, Jeanette, a pretty little equestrienne, who help to make life bearable for Toby. The added features are a Stan Laurel two act comedy, "A Week End Party," and latest Fox News. Starting Sunday matinee only the first chapter of Universal's historical chapter play, "In the Days of Daniel Boone."

Hit Red Cross

Geneva Congress Says U. S. Seeks To Dominate Work

(By the Associated Press)
PARIS—Charges made at the Geneva congress of the International Red Cross that the American Red Cross seeks by its financial weight to dominate Red Cross work throughout the world have caused a breach which the American delegates say cannot be healed until the charges are withdrawn. The charges are obtained in a report in negotiations for a fusion of the international Red Cross and the League of Red Cross societies, a portion of which reads: "The international Red Cross committee does not believe that in the domain of Red Cross work supremacy of influence must belong to those who are most powerful financially. Money which permits creation of functionalaries is certainly useful, but it must not give them the impression that they are the masters of an institution such as the international Red Cross."

Quinn Ordinance Will Not Delay Annexation

Annexation of South Madison will not be delayed by the Quinn ordinance in the opinion of Roman Heilman, city attorney. Fears were expressed among city officials today that the ordinance would be forced to wait another 90 days due to the oversight in not specifying any definite part of the city to which the suburb was to be annexed in the original ordinance. Ald. Thomas Quinn introduced an ordinance requesting that the addition be made to the Ninth ward when brought into the city. The ordinance merely specified annexation but did not provide a point of contact.

"South Madison is now officially a part of the city and introduction of the Quinn ordinance is merely a matter of form," Atty. Heilman said today. "All opposition has disappeared but the city feels that it is advisable to have everything run true to form. The annexation may be completed at the next meeting of the council Sept. 14.

C. C. Head Speaks On National Coal Situation

"The coal situation has assumed unusual importance in its present aspect. It is because in its present aspect this question has assumed a challenge to a fundamental principle of American industrial relations." This is the statement made today by Julius H. Barnes, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in a communication addressed to the local Association of Commerce.

"We have never found in disputes, industrial or of any other character, any method of settlement to replace the one of physical contest and violence, except the method of judicial determination by reference to an impartial tribunal. The establishment of courts and tribunals is the one distinctive feature which marks the difference between a civilized organization of society and that of unorganized barbarism.

What Mr. Simonds Says of Shorewood

"Dear Mr. McKenna:
"To my mind Shorewood is the cream of all the beautiful property about Madison suitable or available for residences. It rises to a height of 175 feet above Lake Mendota and far above surrounding property, so it naturally commands good views in all directions. The largest part of it lies within three miles and a half from the capitol. It is partly covered with a native growth of trees which can be thinned out in such a way as to form pictures to be seen from the windows of future homes. Such pictures are more important than those hung on the walls of living rooms, necessary as the latter are to the full enjoyment of one's home. In addition to the natural forest groups, trees have been planted in open areas and have had the advantage of years of growth. These add value to the property.
"The surroundings of the property could hardly be better. To the north and northwest lies Lake Mendota, as beautiful a lake as can be found in the State of Wisconsin. To the east, the land is very largely owned by the University and the same is true with regard to much of the land toward the south, while on the west, the land belongs to the golf club and so would be kept open and attractive. The land on all sides is relatively low and extends off into broad valleys over which one may look for miles to distant hills. The scenery and surroundings, therefore, are all that could be desired.
"With the construction of the new road leading into the property, the advantages of this location can be listed as follows:
"1. Proximity to Madison, naturally the most beautiful city in the state as well as the capital. The land is within easy walking distance of the state university.
"2. The natural beauty of the tract itself.
"3. Its safety with regard to surrounding property. It is unlikely that factories or smoke-producing buildings will be erected in its vicinity.
"4. The fact that it adjoins a country club with most attractive golf grounds adds much to its value.
"5. The fact that the land borders Lake Mendota, thus bringing boating, swimming, fishing and skating within easy reach is most important.
"With the development of the road, anyone having a home in Shorewood can reach it in a few minutes from the heart of the city, and when he reaches it, he can have unexcelled beauty of outlook and all the attractions of a home in the country.
"Yours sincerely,
"(Signed) O. C. Simonds."

CHAPTER 116

THE REVENGE OF ACHILLES

The sorrow of Achilles over the death of his friend soon turned into rage against the slayer. He put on the shining armor brought from Mount Olympus and went forth to battle.

At his approach, the Trojans began to flee. Again it was only Hector who dared to make a stand. Before leading the Trojans to battle, Hector had paid a touching farewell to his wife and infant son. His wife feared it might befall him that day. In our picture we see her weeping on his shoulder, as he was about to go forth. When his soldiers fled behind the wall of Troy, Hector stayed outside. His father, King Priam, saw him and begged him to come to safety. His mother added her pleas; but Hector was deaf to their words.

On came the raging Achilles, and a cruel light shot from his eyes as he saw his enemy, the slayer of his friend. Hector's heart then gave him and he turned to flee; but a vision came to him of a brother by his side. He turned again toward the Greek and hurled his spear with all his might. It struck the shield of Achilles, then bounded back! Hector turned to ask his brother for another spear, but—alas for poor Hector!—No brother was there.

Hector drew his sword, but what could a sword do against such a shield and such armor? Achilles let loose his spear. The Trojan fell, in the throes of death.

Drunk with blood-lust and revenge, Achilles tied the body of his fallen foe to his chariot and drove round the walls of Troy. Hector's wife fainted as she watched.

Paris, who was a brother of Hector, at a later time slew Achilles by shooting him with a poisoned arrow.

SHOULD SHE ASK MAN FOR PARDON?

Girl Strikes Man for Punishing Boy; Hasn't Seen Him Since

DEAR MRS. THOMPSON: The other night a young man whom I like very much was out near my home. A little boy whom he knew went by. The young man caught the boy and twisted his arms and hurt him dreadfully, just for meanness. I became very angry and rushed up to them. I hit the young man again and again and asked him to stop. I haven't seen him since that night.

Should I beg the young man's pardon for hitting him, or should I let it go?

If I should beg his pardon, should I go on being the same toward him as I have been?

I am a great deal younger than he and something like a third or fourth cousin.

Do not beg the young man's pardon. Simply treat him as if nothing had happened. Doubtless he was trying to be smart when he attacked the smaller boy and now is deeply ashamed of himself. Never mention what happened unless he does.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a divorced woman with two daughters. They are both grown up girls and one is through high school. There is a man, an elderly bachelor, who seems to think a lot of me and also of the girls. He is always doing favors for me and has offered us the use of his car at any time. He takes some girl out some times, but I do not think that it is serious, as he does not see her very often. I have never asked him to do a thing for me that he hasn't seemed pleased to do. I love him very dearly and know that I could make him happy.

I have a nice home and he is a good business man. I know that he is lonesome and would enjoy a good home, but is too timid to say anything. Do you think that it would be all right for me to say something to him? He is always asking us up to his place of business and makes a great fuss over the girls. His business is such that they could help him quite a lot.

—Brown Eyed Widow.

Dear Brown Eyed Widow: Such a thing as you suggest has sometimes been done successfully, more often in the case of a widower than a bachelor. A man who has remained unmarried until he is past middle age may hesitate to take a wife and family and give up his personal freedom, which he evidently has valued and preserved very carefully for a long time. It would be most embarrassing for you if he did not acquiesce readily to your suggestion. However, you might devise a way of sounding him out—perhaps your older daughter might help in some light discussion of the subject, when he is with you. If you can decide certainly what his feelings would be, I believe you could broach the subject without any awkwardness whatever. On the other hand, if you can make things so pleasant for him at your home, that he is led to the subject himself, I know you will be more satisfied later on.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: One of my girl friends knows a boy whom I do not. She has told me many nice things about him and I have seen him many times. I would like to have his friendship. How may I get it?

The Story of an Artist's Wife As Told to Grace Phelps

THE NIGHT OF THE DANCE

The theater had once been a stable and there were still rings along the wall to show where the horses used to be tied in their stalls. It was a very small place, holding not more than 150 persons. It was run something like a club and season tickets were sold so that the place was full every evening.

When the theater was first organized, I was told, there were only enough subscribers to keep a bill running one week, but the plays had become so popular that each bill now lasted three weeks and after that some of the more popular plays were bought by Broadway managers and taken to one of the big theaters uptown.

"Who knows?" Henri said to me. "A month from now and you may be dancing on Broadway!"

I didn't dare think of that, but nevertheless it was an exciting prospect and it was no wonder that less pleasant possibilities were driven out of my mind.

But even more exciting than what a Broadway manager might think of me was the question of how my dancing would affect Barclay. Ever since I had come to Greenwich Village and had seen how other girls were doing interesting things I had longed to do something that would arouse Barclay's admiration. It wasn't enough just to "be." One had to "do" to be worthy of respect, even in the eyes of one's husband.

It wasn't a bad idea, either, I had come to see. Women had talent just as men had and there was no reason why they should not develop them. So many married women in Arden, I remembered, had settled down to a lazy existence. Their houses and children—when they had them—did not take up much time and they spent most of their days in idleness and let their minds rust. Why, some of them were even too lazy to vote!

Or when they did go to the polls, just voted the same ticket as their husbands did without knowing in the least why the candidates were better than any other.

But to come back to the theater. Inez advised me to eat very little the day the new bill was put on. "We will have a great feast after the performance," she said, "but you will dance better if you do not eat much before."

I followed her advice though Barclay growled and declared I would be light-headed if I did not eat more and was in the dressing room underneath the stage a full hour before the curtain went up. There were three one-act plays and ours was the last, but it was the rule that every member of the cast be at the theater before the first number went on.

Inez helped me make up and it was no light task, for every part of me that showed—and the costume was none too ample!—had to be a delicate brown, as Egyptian slave girls were supposed to be. Inez, being a goddess, needed more than a brunette powder on her own olive skin.

I was trembling with stage fright long before the time came for me to go on. I tried to center my attention on what was taking place on the stage, but though Henri had pointed out a most advantageous peep hole for me in the back drop, I was too nervous to see more than a blur and presently I gave up my observation post and descended again to the dressing room.

We could talk only in whispers and even that was frowned upon, so there I sat, biting my lips and wishing devoutly I had never agreed to take the part. I knew perfectly well, once I got on the stage, I would not be able to move a muscle. And instead of being proud of me, Barclay would have cause to be ashamed.

Then, all at once, the time arrived. The curtain had gone up on Inez and Henri seated on their thrones and I stood in the wings, waiting for Victor's signal, the first bar of the music that was to bring me on.

Uncle Wiggly's Bedtime Stories

By HOWARD GARIS

UNCLE WIGGLY AND THE GREEN BEANS

Copyright, 1923, by McClure News-Paper Syndicate

"Nurse Jane, I am going off to look for a little adventure," said Uncle Wiggly one morning, "and may I have the pleasure of bringing you back anything?"

The muskrat lady housekeeper thought for a moment and then she answered:

"The only thing I need is a string of green beads."

"Green beads," murmured Uncle Wiggly, writing the words down on a piece of white birch bark so he would not forget. "Do you want large or small green beads?" he asked.

"Small ones that I may string them on a thread and make a necklace," answered Nurse Jane. "I am going to the moving pictures with Mrs. Wiggly."

"You shall have them!" promised the muskrat lady housekeeper, "even if I have to go without my adventure."

Then he hopped away from the hollow stump bungalow, over the fields and through the woods.

The first adventure Uncle Wiggly had was when he helped a little red lady jump over a puddle of water. The puddle was only about as small as a penny, but to the red lady it seemed as large as the sea and she was so glad to get over it that she gave him a penny.

"Thank you, Uncle Wiggly," said the little red lady.

The next adventure the muskrat lady had was scratching the back of a road lady. The road lady was so fat she couldn't reach around to scratch her own back, so the muskrat lady did it for her.

"Thank you, Uncle Wiggly," croaked the road lady.

And the next adventure Uncle Wiggly had—oh, I must tell you all about that!

All of a sudden, as Mr. Longears was hopping along he came to a bush on which grew some round, green shiny berries.

"Ah, just what Nurse Jane needs for her string of beads to wear to the moving pictures," thought the muskrat lady. "I'll pick her some of these green berries and she can string them."

But when he hopped closer to the bush he found it was holly.

Now, holly, you know, has very stiff, shiny green leaves, and on each leaf are many stickers, pricklers and thorns. So that it is hard to pick the holly berries without getting stuck. The holly berries are small, round and green in August, but later in the year they turn shiny and red and look so beautiful amid the green leaves to be made into Christmas wreaths.

Uncle Wiggly tried to pick some of the green holly berries for Nurse Jane's necklace, but each time he tried he was pricked so hard by the sticky leaves that he had to stop.

And then, while he was looking at the holly bush, wondering how he could get some of the green berries, all of a sudden, out from behind a rock jumped the Woogie Wolf.

"Ah, ha! Now I've caught you!" howled the Wolf, grasping Uncle Wiggly by his ears.

"Yes, you have caught me, but what are you going to do with me?" asked the bunny.

"Do with you?" Why, nibble your ears, of course!" howled the Wolf.

Uncle Wiggly looked at the prickly, sticky, holly tree buns and asked:

"Will you do me one favor before you nibble my ears, Mr. Wolf?"

"Yes," growled the Wolf: "I will do you one favor that you ask, if it isn't the favor to let you go."

"No," promised Uncle Wiggly. "I will not ask that. All I want for you to do is to gather some of those green berries for me. Nurse Jane wants them for a necklace."

"All right!" I'll get you some green berries and later I'll nibble your ears," said the Wolf. Then, not knowing about the prickly, sticky leaves, into the middle of the holly tree bush jumped the bad chap, to pull off some green berries. But the leaves caught in his fur, they pricked, they stuck and they pricked him.

"Oh, wow! Oh, wow! Oh, trolley cars!" howled the Wolf. "This was a trick to catch me! I can't get out! I can't get out! And he couldn't for the prickly leaves held him fast."

But he shook loose a lot of green berries, which rolled out on the ground, and Uncle Wiggly gathered them up.

"I'll bid you good day, Mr. Wolf," said the bunny, and away he hopped with the green berries for Nurse Jane's necklace, and the Wolf was stuck in the holly bush until his wife came with the scissors and cut him out.

So the bunny's ears weren't nibbled, and if the cow lady doesn't put water in the milk bottle to wash the face of the clock, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly and the big melon.

Household Hints

MENU HINT

Breakfast. Goldenrod Eggs. Toast. Blueberries. Coffee.

Luncheon. Lamb Souffle. Warm Rolls. Elderberry Jelly. Milk.

Dinner. Steak Smothered in Onions. Mashed Potatoes. Berry Pie. Vegetable Salad. Tea.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Goldenrod Eggs—Six hard boiled eggs, white sauce, toast. Boil the eggs until hard, separate whites from yolks. Make a white sauce from one tablespoon of butter (melted), one tablespoon flour, one pint milk, salt and pepper or paprika. When done add the chopped whites of the eggs and pour over toast. Put pulverized egg yolks on top and serve.

Lamb Souffle—Lamb souffle is a savory dish. It may be made either from cold or the fresh meat, simmered until very tender. Pass enough of the cooked lamb through the meat grinder to give one cupful and a half. Season to taste with salt, paprika and celery salt and add half a cupful of seasoned cream sauce and two tablespoons of chopped parsley. Heat over hot water and stir in the beaten yolks of two eggs. Remove from the fire, cool and fold in the stiffly whipped egg whites. Turn into a buttered soufflé dish and bake until well risen and browned. Serve quickly, as, like all souffles, it falls when removed from the heat of the oven.

HEALTHFUL SWEETS

Parisian Sweets—Use equal quantities of figs, dates, prunes and nuts. Raisins may be added and the nuts omitted. Put through a food chopper. Mix well and roll in a little powdered sugar or grated cocoanut.

Stuffed Prunes and Dates—Soak the prunes overnight and replace stones with chopped nuts, raisins or apricots. Wash dates, dry and stuff same as prunes. Roll in granulated sugar.

SUGGESTIONS

Furniture Polish—Take equal parts of vinegar and olive oil, mix well and rub well into the wood, then polish with a soft cloth. You will find it economical as well as handy, as a small amount can be made whenever needed. Will not injure the furniture and makes it look like new.

Scorched Food—When the food you are cooking on the stove boils dry do not add water to it. Plunge the dish immediately into cold water. Then after a few moments pour the contents into another dish to complete the cooking. In this way there is little danger that the food will taste, even though it has been slightly scorched.

Twin Cities Beat 'Blues' By 10-4 Score

La Hail Knocked Out Of Box; Foster Goes In

TWIN CITIES—Eddie Lenahan's Madison Blues who have been "runnin' wild" during the past two weeks, copping games right and left, struck a snag here Wednesday afternoon when Jimmy Dodge's Red Sox came out of a nine inning encounter on the best end of a 10 to 4 count.

"Bank" La Hail, Madison boy, was on the mound for the Blues but was knocked out of the box before the tilt was well under way and was replaced by Eddie Foster. Foster held the Twins down, but it was too late. Van Drowschek, hurling for the Red Sox, was in great form as usual and pitched a heady game.

This week end the Twins will journey to Madison for a series. It will be the last series between the two teams.

Swelling Over Left Eye Heals to Permit Strenuous Session

NEW YORK—Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion, put in another hard day's training Tuesday in his camp in Summit, N. J. The swelling over his left eye, which caused him to lay off strenuous training Monday, was sufficiently healed to permit of his going through a strenuous workout, but he wore a headgear. Wilson hurt his eye when butted by Sam Taylor. Wilson weighed 150 1/2 pounds Tuesday morning.

Grab worked ten rounds at Manhasset Tuesday. He will wind up his training Wednesday, and says he will be well under the prescribed poundage—160 pounds at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Promoters Wondering About Siki's Reception

NEW YORK—Local promoters are wondering how Bazil Siki will be received when he arrives here next week on the Berengaria. Nobody seems to know who is handling the pugilistic affairs of the Senegalese and as yet the conqueror of Georges Carpentier has not tried to arrange any match by cable.

This looks like a good spot for Jack Johnson if the former heavyweight champion intends to make a "come back." Siki will be good for only one bout here. There are probably a dozen American heavyweights who can whip him. He has done boxing no good and the sooner he is disposed of the better for the game.

Gene Sennett, who is now handling Johnson's affairs, professes to be surprised at the refusal of Bazil to agree to a match with the American Heavyweight champion, Harry Wells. Sennett claims "Mullins promised him the bout in case Wells could not obtain a match with Jack Dempsey this season. He asserts that Richard is willing to stage the affair in Jersey City."

Down the Fairways

By BRYN GRIFFITHS

Grading on the last nine holes of the Black Hawk course is practically completed and will be ready for seeding very soon. Although the players are now using 18 holes, only nine are permanent.

Black Hawk Greens
The greens of the Black Hawk course are going to be the subject of much comment before long. Those for the last permanent nine holes now being constructed are being made in the forms of Indian arrow heads, tomahawks, and other shapes to correspond with the general idea of "Black Hawk" an Indian name. These greens will be ideal although it is going to make the course a harder one to play—which most golfers like.

Members of the Nakoma course predict that in three years their course will be on a par if not better than the other courses located in Madison. Although there are but nine holes at the present time, nine more will be added, and the Nakoma course will be the largest in yardage in the city. It will exceed by 200 yards the length of the Maple Bluff course, the longest here now.

Gyro Club To Ouzakee
A team of eight players, members of the Gyro club left this morning for Ouzakee where they will compete in a tourney with the Milwaukee, Chicago and Sterling Gyro clubs. The men who left are Glenn Stephens, Al Lindauer, Harold Mead, Lorenz Maisel, Asa Groves, J. Bied, Carl Harper and Al Breuch. This gang should certainly make an account of themselves!

Look at This One
Guy Martin, Maple Bluff professional made six of the first nine holes in three strokes each during a match with John Marshall this week. Marshall became so dizzy watching Guy shine the ball in the holes in three strokes that he almost forgot to play the game. Guy made the first nine holes in 34, which is three below par.

O'Shea Meets Sanborn
One of the interesting matches in the championship flight to be played this week will be a match between Prof. M. V. O'Shea and Phil Sanborn, present title holder. Prof. O'Shea, fresh from a victory over E. E. Parkinson in the first flight of the title round was on the

AN APOLOGY TO PROF. O'SHEA
In a recent issue of The Capital Times, in which an account of the Maple Bluff championship matches was carried, the writer stated that E. E. Parkinson defeated Prof. O'Shea. This was an error. Prof. O'Shea defeated Mr. Parkinson and meets Phil Sanborn in the second round this week.

We are sorry for our error, professor, but mistakes will happen, you know. Here's hoping you play your best against Phil Sanborn.

Billy Wells, Opponent for 'Tillie' Kid Herman, Has Done Much Work with 'The Champ'

MILWAUKEE—Billy Wells, the European welterweight champion, who met "Tillie" Kid Herman in a recent bout, before the Ayrault C. at the Ice Garden in Milwaukee, August 28th, has done most of his training with Champion Jack Dempsey. Billy also trained with Dempsey when Jack fought Tommy Gibbons at Shelby, Mont. for the title.

Issues Challenge
Charley Harvey, manager of Wells, has issued a challenge through the New York commission to meet either Mickey Walker, Dave Shade or Jimmy Jones for the title. The commission declared Walker suspended when he declined to meet Shade and awarded the title to David. Then Jimmy Jones came along and defeated Shade in Ohio and claimed the championship, so Harvey wants to meet whoever the commission says is the champion.

Herman A Challenger
Herman, who will have it out with Wells in Milwaukee, is also a challenger for the crown, so if there should be a K. Q. either way it will eliminate one contender at any rate. Herman is a classy welterweight as his record shows and he is liable to give Mr. Wells a lot of trouble. Herman lost on a foul to Jack Malone, but ringside fans say it was a questionable foul many claiming it was a fair blow that put Jack down. The winner in Milwaukee will have clear sailing after Jones and Shade.

In the semi-final two Milwaukee rivals will battle Harry Kahn and Joe Selaiff. Both are 135 pounders and have large followings, so the battling will be strong. Kahn is a southpaw and looks very promising, but Selaiff will have the entire south side bunch of fans backing him.

Two prelims of six rounds each will make up the card. Jack McGill of Racine will meet Joey Clein a Milwaukee High School boy at 128 pounds, while Billy Bunch of Milwaukee will exchange wallops with Babe Barron of Chicago at 118 pounds. Popular prices will be the order $1 to $5.

Medalist In Western Meet Is Eliminated

Mrs. Melvin Jones Put Out Of Tourny By Miss M. Burns

CHICAGO—It was a turbulent day for the Chicago entrants in the Women's Western Golf Association championship who competed in the second round Wednesday. As a net result of the day's activities six of the nine who started in the round were defeated.

Surprises were many, the most unexpected being the defeat of Mrs. Melvin Jones of Olympia Fields. The latter, who is a former title holder, and who led the qualifying round with 86, did not play up to her usual style, with the result that Miss Marian Burns of Westmoreland took the contest, 2 up and 1 to play.

The defeat of Miss Virginia Wilson of Onwentsia at the hands of Miss Louise Fordyce of Youngstown, Ohio, also caused considerable comment. The latter took the match 3 and 1 after a round that marked some unusual play on the part of the Ohio entrant.

Another local star who went down to defeat was Mrs. J. W. Taylor of Evanston, who lost to Miss Elsie Hilding of Grand Rapids, Mich., 1 up. This match was a battle royal for the greater part of the round and the result was in doubt until the home green was reached, where Mrs. Taylor failed to sink a ten-footer for a half.

Sees Victory
NEW YORK—Benny Leonard is telling his friends he is going to knock Johnny Dundee into a cocked hat on the night of Sept. 5 when the pair meet at the Yankee stadium.

The remarks have sent Dundee's blood boiling to 1,000. He doesn't like the talk of being knocked out. It isn't being done so far as Dundee is concerned, and the result is that Dundee wants to wager a little money that it doesn't come off—that is to say, the k. o.

Dundee telephoned Jimmy Johnston Monday and told him that if Leonard really talked k. o. to him, Dundee had $25,000 that the lightweight champion doesn't stop him. At the odds, of course, Dundee wants to bet the money at the market price that he is there at the finish and looking happy over the result—another championship.

Lack of Money Causes Godfrey to Call Off Fight

CHICAGO—The 10 round fight between George Godfrey, sparring partner to Jack Dempsey and Clem Johnson, who claims the heavyweight title in Mexico, failed to materialize when Godfrey refused to enter the ring until he received the money he asked for.

Motorcyclists Can Enter Big Janesville Races

Attention, Madison motorcycle riders!
The sporting editor of The Capital Times has been asked by Frank Sinclair, sporting editor of The Janesville Gazette to get a line on local riders who want to compete at Janesville Sept. 9 for prizes totaling $1,000.

As many Madison entries as can be obtained are sought.

If you want to get the Janesville races over a mile track—one of the best in the state, and compete with men like "Red" Parkhurst, get in touch with Bryn Griffiths, The Capital Times sports editor, at once.

Don't delay. Janesville wants Madison riders to enter, and Madison riders want to race at Janesville. It's mutual. Let's go!

W. J. Hobbins and L. J. Markwardt Eliminated Tuesday

By BRYN GRIFFITHS
"Bob" Duncan, well known in University of Wisconsin sport circles, and an enthusiastic golfer of the Black Hawk club, will meet J. R. Drake for first honors in the second flight of the club tournament now being held.

"Bob" triumphed over W. J. Hobbins, 3 and 2 Tuesday afternoon, and Drake defeated L. J. Markwardt, 2 and 1. The match between Duncan and Drake will be played off Sept. 1, as will the championship game between Joe Hyland and M. E. Pipkin, who won their way into the finals Tuesday.

Bill Killefer

CHICAGO—Bill Killefer is back in good standing. His indefinite suspension has been canceled by President Heydler of the National League. Oscar Dugey, second in command to Bill, is threatened with tonsillitis; Alexander, vet ace, had departed for Cincinnati. So Heydler allowed Killefer to assume command of his club.

Jock Hutchinson Gets O. K. To Play In Meet

NEW YORK—The Professional Golfers' association may make a special ruling to permit Jock Hutchinson, Chicago star, to compete in the P. G. A. title tournament at Pelham Manor, N. State Fair Races Are Again Stopped By Rain

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—The Western Racing Circuit program at the Wisconsin state fair here today came to an abrupt end in a downpour of rain this afternoon, which turned one of the fastest tracks in the history of the state, into a smear of mud. The week's racing program is now two days behind, having been rained out Monday and today.

Papyrus Wins Duke Of York Race Stakes

YORK, England—Papyrus, Ben Lih's derby winner, won the Duke of York stakes here today. Papyrus finished a short head behind Craig Eley, owned by A. H. Stracker, but the latter horse was unlaced by the judges on the ground that he "bored," that is, did not keep straight on the course. Lord Astor's Papyrus was placed second and Aga Khan's Trick Aunt, third.

Oh I get it. Yes yes—lets go.

I think I'd rather be a beetle than a wind miss Edna.

She has a fat chance of catching those dumbbells. The little one asked me if I'd catch wrote Grams down.

Haha—And Eggbert thinks that B.V.D. is a radio station.

Wheat Prices Irregular At Early Trading
Stock Gains Exceed Loss; Rails Strong

(By the Associated Press.)
CHICAGO—Wheat was irregular at the start today with only fractional changes in prices. Taking the general news was decidedly mixed. Wheat cables were reported higher, local elevator workers have threatened to go on strike Sunday if their demands for an increase in pay are not granted and with favorable conditions generally more favorable, the market was more or less unsettled. Trade was mixed and light and values eased off shortly after the opening on increased offerings. Opening prices which ranged from 5c lower to a like advance, with Dec. 1923, 1.07 1/2 to 1.10 1/2, were followed by a slight general easing off on all deliveries.

Covers by recent sellers brought out by the strength in corn, later gave the wheat market a firmer undernote and the close was 1/2c higher, with Dec. 1923, 1.07 1/2 to 1.10 1/2, and May 1924, 1.07 1/2 to 1.10 1/2.

Strength in cash corn and some short covering brought up the tone of the wheat market, which closed at a net gain of 1/2 to 1, with December 1923, 1.07 1/2 to 1.10 1/2, and May 1924, 1.07 1/2 to 1.10 1/2.

Provisions—Provisions were slightly better, offerings being light and buyers inclined to support September hard.

Illinois Next Progressive Battleground

ILLINOIS is the state next in line for a smashing campaign in the Republican primaries, in which Progressives will attempt to capture congressional and senatorial offices on the platforms which have already triumphed in Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, Nebraska and Iowa.
Friends of Senator La Follette in Illinois are now preparing to seek the scalp of Senator Medill McCormick in the primaries in Illinois next April.
Illinois is bounded on the north by Wisconsin, and on the west by Iowa, and it is felt by the Progressives that the farmers and wage-earners of the state are eager for a chance to go on record for Progressive candidates.

THE situation in Illinois is being closely watched at Washington because it is regarded as the crucial state in the Middle Western section. If Illinois goes for a Progressive candidate for the Senate, the Old Guard leaders who were shocked at the landslide for La Follette last fall and the election of Brookhart in Iowa and Shipstead and Magnus Johnson in Minnesota, will be forced into the last ditch to retain control of Ohio, Indiana, and other Middle Western states.

Senator McCormick will be attacked by La Follette's aides in Illinois for his vote for the Esch-Cummins law, his advocacy of the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill, and his authorship of the resolution which paved the way for the Federal Reserve Board's "deflation" policy.

The Progressives in Illinois are now making a candidate with which to oppose McCormick. They will make no "deals" with the Small-Thompson faction, but will put up a vigorous campaign in behalf of a candidate of their own choice for Senator.

As soon as a candidate is selected, it is probable that Senator La Follette and some of the Wisconsin congressmen who invaded Minnesota this summer will be called to Illinois to participate in the campaign.

The Wisconsin Senator has not spoken in Illinois since 1911, when he was a presidential candidate against Taft. Soon after he returns from Europe, his friends in Illinois will ask him to make half a dozen speeches in the state in the early months of 1924.

Representatives John M. Nelson, Henry A. Cooper, and Joseph D. Becki whose Wisconsin districts border on Illinois, will be among the first of the Wisconsin congressmen invited to participate in the Illinois campaign.

GOVERNOR SMALL of Illinois has already given some evidence that the Wisconsin program is a factor in the politics of his state by adopting several of its planks in his own platform for renomination. He advocates the repeal of the Esch-Cummins Law and a popular referendum on a declaration of war. These planks appeared in the Wisconsin platform of 1920.

The Progressives in Illinois who are opposing Senator McCormick will not endorse Governor Small. They appear likely to steer clear of all existing factions within the party and to wage a fight in the open in behalf of a program modeled after the platform which has won overwhelming popular majorities in Wisconsin, Minnesota and other states of the Northwest within the past two years.

The Wall Street Journal—of all papers—says there is something stale and hysterical about such fears of radicalism as those expressed by the publicity committee of the American Bar Association.

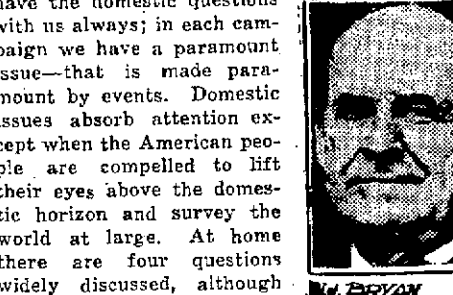

Along with some rot about the "57 varieties," the Wall Street organ says it would be better for the bar association to reform judicial procedure.

It is comforting to be able to agree with our journalistic enemy once in a life time. Judicial procedure—as we have pointed out on other occasions when the bar association was about to meet—is in sore need of revision. So long as the bar is not able to establish efficiency in its own sphere, it lives in a glass house and is not in a position to criticize others. As to its amusing opposition to radicalism, we shall have more to say—William T. Evjue, Editor.

Farmers Come First

Are Outstanding Issues of Next Campaign, Declares Bryan

"The political issue—or I think it is better to say issues—of 1924 will be determined largely by what the next session of Congress does and by what is done in Europe between now and the conventions. We have the domestic questions with us always; in each campaign we have a paramount issue—that is made paramount by events. Domestic issues absorb attention except when the American people are compelled to lift their eyes above the domestic horizon and survey the world at large. At home there are four questions widely discussed, although no one can now estimate their relative importance, and, of course, there will not be unanimous agreement as to their relative importance even when election day arrives.

W. J. BRYAN

"First I would put the condition of the American farmer. He is suffering more than any other class and the farmer makes up one-third of the nation in population. The price level is disintegrated; the farmer buys upon a level almost 50 per cent higher than the level upon which he sells. This is ruinous and, in time, spells bankruptcy. No other question is likely to influence the farmer's thought and political action so much as that question.

"The second question affects the laboring class, the next group in size to the agricultural group. There are certain readjustments necessary to insure equity to the laboring men, but the most disturbing feature of the situation is the increasing antagonism between labor and capital—the class consciousness manifested by members of both groups. The attitude of the Government is alarming to the laboring men, and this alarm has been increased by the recent decision of the Supreme Court in which five of the court denied the right of Congress to fix a minimum wage—three judges dissenting and one not taking part in the decision. This is another of the five to four decisions and still further intensifies the desire of the masses for legislation or constitutional provision which will make it impossible for a bare majority of the Supreme Court to nullify legislation on questions which are more political than judicial in their character.

"The third issue deals with the curbing of the profiteer. Those who are in position to organize can charge what the traffic will bear, and are doing so, while those who cannot organize are the victims not only of natural conditions but of the artificial conditions which monopoly creates. Something must be done; it remains to be seen whether the situation will be relieved by the action of the next Congress or aggravated by its failure to act.

"Taxation is the fourth domestic issue. Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, is already suggesting a further reduction in the surtax—a policy which puts the pecuniary interests of the rich above the necessities of those not so well-to-do. It is shifting the burden of taxation from the backs of the strong to the backs of the weak. As the Democrats and the progressives combined will have a majority in both houses it is not likely that any such reactionary policy can be successful.

"There will of course be many other issues, but I mention the above as issues that affect very large groups and which will therefore have strong public opinion back of them. When we know what the issues are we shall be in position to discuss candidates. Events make issues and issues make candidates."

Poems That Live

ON A FAVORITE CAT, DROWNED IN A TUB OF GOLD FISHES

'Twas on a loft vase's side,
Where china's gayest art had dyed
The azure flowers that blow,
Demurest of the tabby kind,
The pensive Selima, reclined,
Gazed on the lake below.

Her conscious tail her joy declared:
The fair round face, the snowy beard,
The velvet of her paws,
Her coat that with the tortoise vies,
Her ears of jet, and emerald eyes—
She saw and purr'd applause.

Still had she gazed, but 'midst the tide
Two angel forms were seen to glide,
The Genii of the stream;
Their scaly armour's Tyrian hue
Through richest purple to the view
Betrayed a golden gleam.

The hapless Nymph with wonder saw:
A whisker first, and then a claw.
With many an ardent wish
She stretched, in vain, to reach the prize—
What female heart can gold despise?
What cat's averse to fish?

Presumptuous maid! with looks intent
Again she stretched, again she bent,
Nor knew the gulf between—
Malignant fate sat by and smiled—
The slippery verge her feet beguiled;
She tumbled headlong in!

Eight times emerging from the flood
She mow'd to every watery god
Some speedy aid to send.
No Dolphin came, no Nereid stirr'd,
Nor cruel Tom nor Susan heard—
A favorite has no friend!

From hence, ye Beauties! undeceived
Know one false step is ne'er retrieved,
And be with caution bold;
Not all that tempts your wandering eyes
And heedless hearts, is lawful prize,
Nor all that glistens, gold!

—Thomas Gray.

The Book Column

By A. F. M.

If I could have news to give you every week like this that follows, book column would be one of the most coveted of indoor sports instead of the horsemade task it often is reduced to by virtue of culling reams of literary garbage necessary to getting anything to tell you that's worth while.

But here's real news. Beginning Jan. 1, Alfred A. Knopf is going to publish a new monthly magazine to be known as THE AMERICAN MERCURY. "Not so hot," you say. But it's to be edited by George Jean Nathan and H. L. Mencken. That, my friends, unless you are particular cronies of William Lyon Phelps, ought to bring out the beamiest smiles of anticipation.

The publishers tell us that the scope of the publication will be to review the entire American scene—politics, government, science, industry, literature, art, music. There will be a distinguished list of collaborators, which list will ultimately include certain European talent. To quote their exact words, "its central effort will be to combat all pedantry and pretense, to encourage sound and original work in all intellectual departments, and to offer a quick and welcome hearing to men and women capable of it."

I defy anyone to offer a loftier statement of principle for a publication. Surely there are few journals of any sort today to which can be ascribed any altruistic principle honestly sustained in the face of all opposition.

That the younger thinkers of America will welcome this new effort, is something more than a remote contingency. I quote you from the Nation of this week.

"There is no team (Mencken and Nathan) to compare with them in present day letters. Find fault with them as one may—and it is hard to pick holes in their armor—no two men in America today are doing more to stir the youth in the colleges and out of them to independent, critical, creative thinking than Mencken and Nathan."

May I add to that a solemn "Amen." Advance subscriptions at five dollars per year may be sent to 220 West 42nd Street, New York City. I would consider it a certain sign of healthy intellectual activity in Madison, if this new publication were to receive from us a genuine reception.

THE SNAKE DOCTOR, by Irvin Cobb (Doran: New York).

This is a newly edited volume of Cobb's short stories and bears the name of the first and presumably best of them.

There is in Cobb's style so much of the daily news sheet, that one hardly expects him to parade his King's English in any new and strange combinations. For that reason, and I suppose none other, Irvin Cobb has never had any period of intense popularity wherein his presence on the street caused riots among the urchins and autograph parasites. But nevertheless, one has that comfortable feeling, when one sits down to a story by the porky gentleman under consideration, that one is going to be right royally entertained. Such is the replete sort of thrill I got out of The Snake Doctor.

There's a very engaging plot in the title story, and a lot of interesting sidelights on the superstition and native characteristics of sleepy little Southern river towns.

There are ten other very good short stories, too. Judge Priest appears in three or four of them. They're any of them worth buying the book to read.

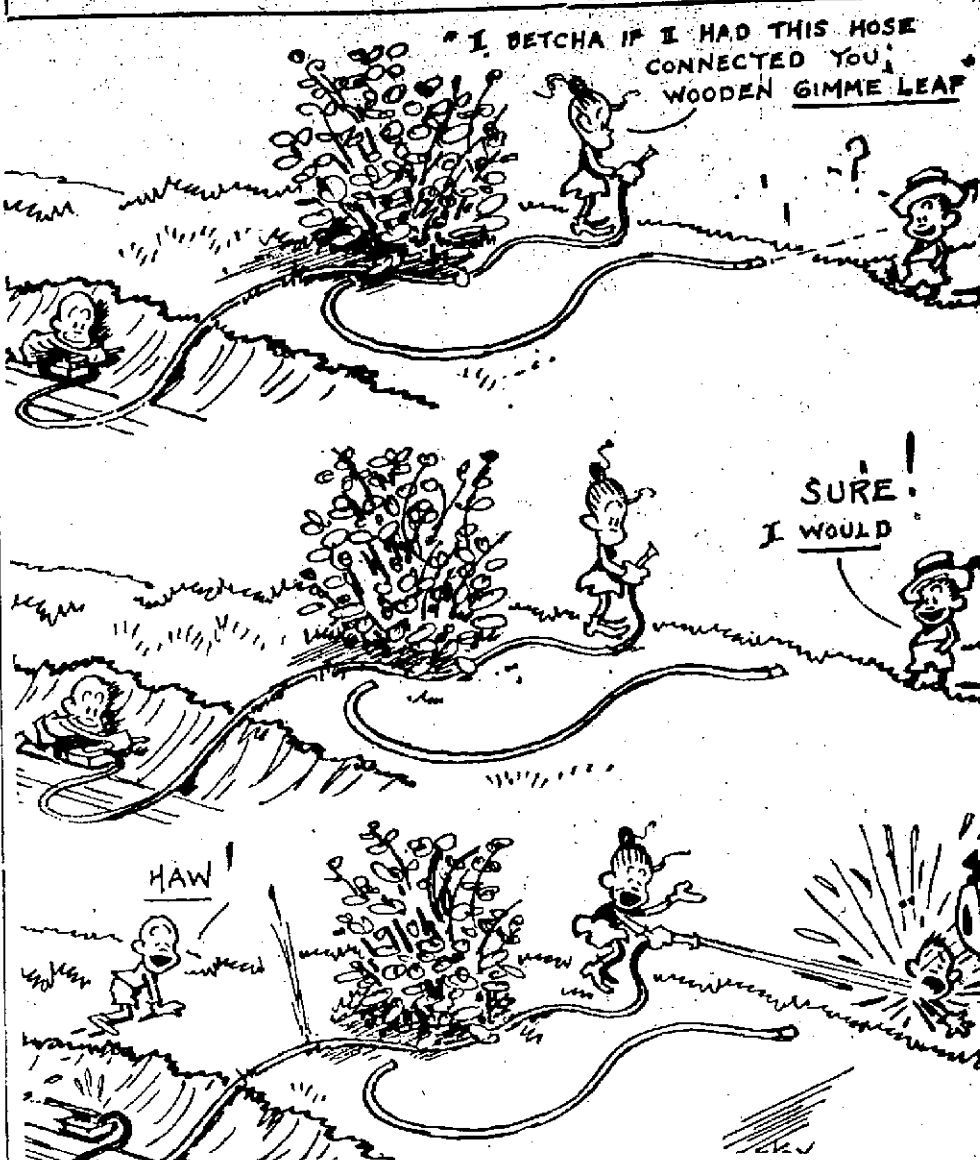

The Century for September has a piece of good blank verse by Robert Frost—"The Star Splitter." President Meiklejohn's article "To Whom Are We Responsible," discussed here a week or so ago, will interest anyone who has followed the work of presidents in our own University. There's another good short story by Theodore Dreiser this month, too.

One has to admire the well rounded quality of The Century. It's an institution in American letters of which we can be proud.

Bertrand Russell, an English philosopher of whom Americans should know more, presents a very profound paper in the DIAL for August. The title of his story is "Leisure and Mechanism" and deals with some aspects of the oppressive drabness of the American industrial community. Mr. Russell first of all designates the types of excellence toward which a successful community should strive, and then proceeds to point out wherein the average industrial community falls short.

Many of his points have been held for years by many of America's best minds. Among those is none other than our own beloved Max Otto. It is hard to pass through a town like Gary, Indiana, and leave the place with any hope that the visions of such men as Otto, Russell and others, will ever be realities. But at least it does no harm to strive toward the day when beauty, and loveliness, and friendliness supplant ugliness, and avarice, and sharp dealings—when workmen take pride in their handicraft, when streets cease to be long straight rows of ugly hovels, and libraries cease to be advertised by delicious Chamber of Commerce secretaries, for the costs of construction and capacities for volumes. (see Okmulgee, Oklahoma Chamber of Commerce pamphlet).

The '1924 Issues

Gompers Says Question of Big Business Domination Will Be Big Question

It is impossible to know what issues the politicians may seek to develop for the 1924 campaign; but so far as the people are concerned there are many issues already developed of paramount importance," says Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

More important than any single specific issue the general question of whether the policy of Government is to be a big-business policy or a people's policy.

"The tendency at present is in favor of big business, and I am of the opinion that many politicians sadly underestimate the resentment against which is felt by the masses of our people. Recent decisions of the Supreme Court, for example, have shown this tendency in the minimum wage for women case, in the child labor case, in the Coronado case and in other cases.

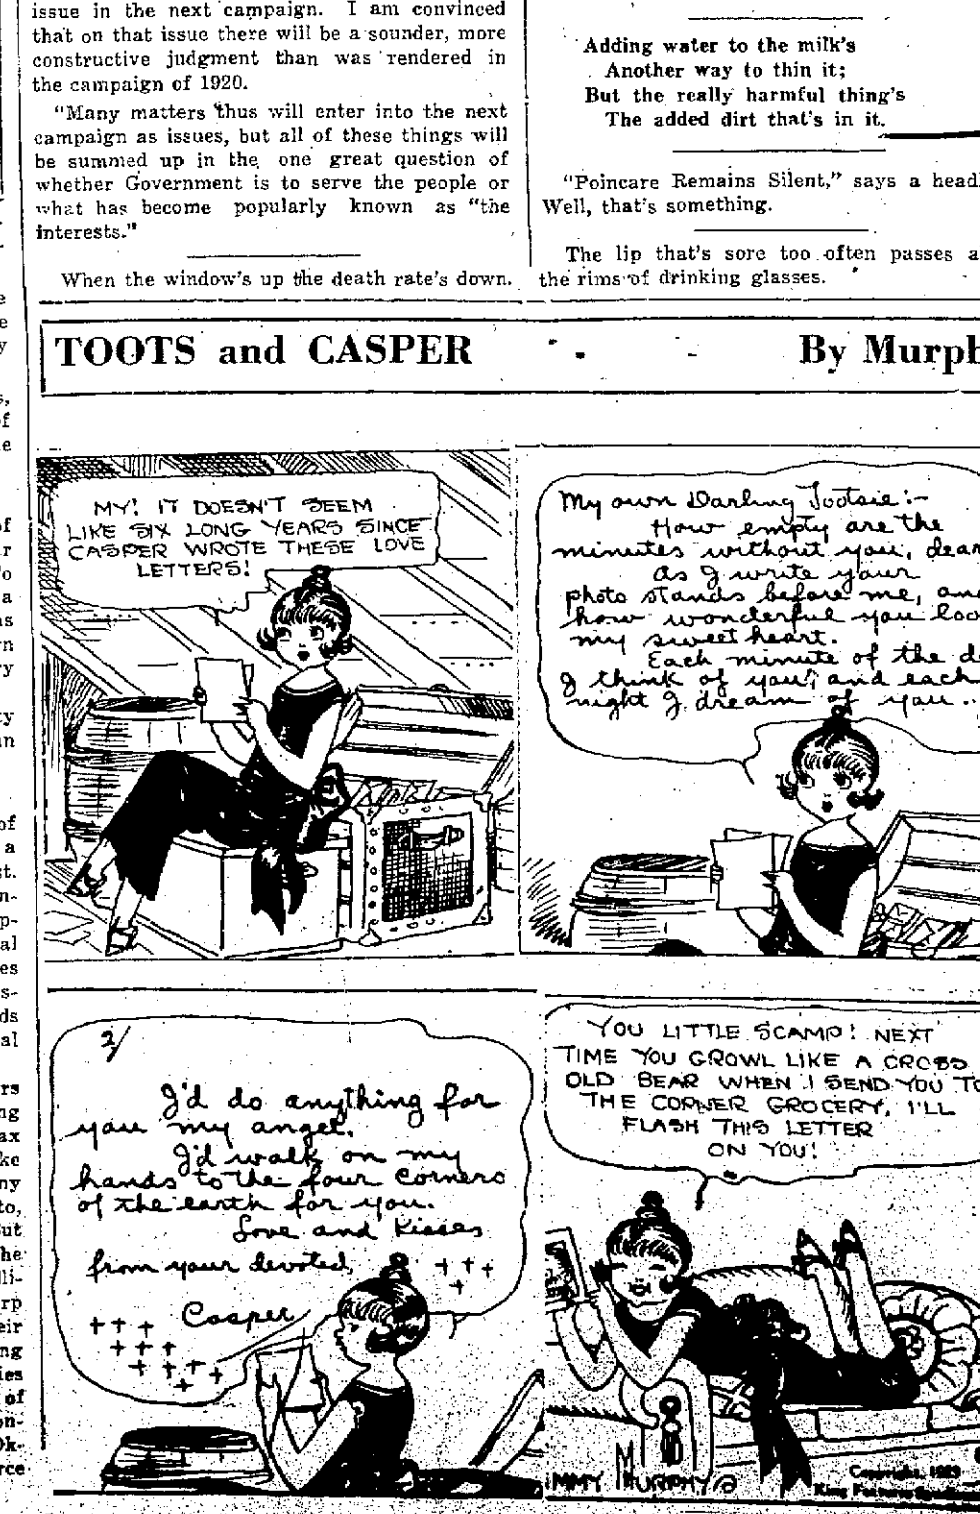

"I do not see how the issue thus created can be avoided by politicians. Neither do I see how there can be an escape from the consequences of such things as the shameful Teapot Dome oil scandal and the iniquitous Ship Subsidy bill. I am convinced also that our attitude toward the rest of the world will strike a vital issue in the next campaign. I am convinced that on that issue there will be a sounder, more constructive judgment than was rendered in the campaign of 1920.

"Many matters thus will enter into the next campaign as issues, but all of these things will be summed up in the one great question of whether Government is to serve the people or what has become popularly known as 'the interests.'"

PICKS O'THE TIMES

AMPLIFIED BY IRV SHAFRIN

Two gentlemen of Hebrew extraction, joint owners of a Ford, were haled into Square Yerkes court at Millbourne on the charge of driving at night with only one headlight, says Everybody's.

The Hebrew gentlemen pleaded guilty and were fined ten dollars and costs.

"Well," said one of the partners, "the easiest way to settle the matter is for each of us to pay half. We both own the car, and we was both in it."

"No, no!" exclaimed the other. "My side wasn't out! My side wasn't out!"

A conservative old lady was once discussing with her son-in-law what seemed to her the curious fact that a certain Mr. Ketchum had been able to effect an entrance into the homes of the fashionable set, says the Philadelphia Ledger. "In my day," said the old lady, "a man with his table manners would not have been considered a desirable addition to any dinner company. Why, he has no idea how to use his knife and fork!"

"No-o," said the young man, slowly, "that's perfectly true; but his ability to cut coupons is such that they overlook his awkwardness with steak, fish and game."

It was a lurid British melodrama, says The Bits, and one of the characters, a king, was haranguing his son. "Come," said the king, "let us go into the 'ouse."

"Did you hear that?" said a man in the stalls to his companion. "He said 'ouse.'"

Overhearing the remark, and fixing the interrupter with his eye, the king advanced to the footlights and exclaimed: "Yus, I said 'ouse! Do you think as 'ow a king would live in apartments?"

SONGS OF SPIRITS AMPHIBIOUS!

Let me reminisce and dream of days of old, When caravel plunged thru the seething sea, When the swarthy buccaneers Swarmed aboard the privateers Bearing shekels from the Sheik of Araby.

Let me listen to the soothing waters lap— There's a tiny ship goes bobbing on each crest, Tho' beset by sudden gales It ever onward sails To the mystic regions rising to the west.

Let me rest awhile, contented with my dreams, While the waters swirl around my weary feet There are tales of wild romance On the waters' broad expanse— There are tales of mighty conquest and defeat.

Impatient seem the little wavelets all, As they end their lives in foolish futile foam— Did the roaring Spanish Main See me write this wild refrain?

Wrong, I wrote it in my bathtub safe at home! —Arthur L. Lippmann.

THE FOOTBALL IDOL

Lycurgus was the huskiest of all the college team. His kicking was a classic and his running was a scream.

The enemy all took to flight, their terror ill-concealed, Whenever he grabbed the pigskin and went tearing down the field.

He was the very limit in the strenuous pastime; To ask a man to tackle him was nothing but a crime.

He was the strongest man they'd had in twenty-seven years; He always left the field bestrewn with arms and legs and ears.

But back home in vacation time, his strength just failed, I vow, He was so weak he couldn't think of following the plow.

He couldn't hoe potatoes and he couldn't split the wood, Although he told his parents he would like to if he could.

He simply seemed to pine away and dwindle as a rule, Till in the fall when time came 'round for him to go to school.

Then he'd recover suddenly and take an awful brace, In feats of strength a deal depends upon the time and place.

Fred Kidd is a great admirer of birds, and believes in giving them every encouragement that is possible. Therefore he cries out because young fledglings just out of the nest and not able to fly are gobbled up by neighborhood cats. He says some of his neighbors have even boasted that they do not have to feed their cats because they are able to exist on the birds which they kill. "There should be a law of some kind passed which will guard the young birds against the cat menace," declares Mr. Kidd. We endorse all that he says and hope some kind-hearted statesman will push through a bill next winter making it a misdemeanor for hungry cats to eat young birds. The cats have been allowed too much freedom. With such a law staring him in the face any fool cat will think twice before he leaps.

The stage is now all set for the recognition of Mexico by the United States. We hope that this time Mexico will stay recognized for awhile.

MILITARISTS NEVER LEARN

General Pershing, touring the country at the expense of the taxpayers, says that training youths in the art of warfare does not make them bloodthirsty.

Of course not. Training a boy to commit murder will make him gentle as a lamb. Training him to thrust a bayonet into the vitals of his fellowman and turn it around will cause him to follow the teaching of the man of Galilee. "That ye love one another."

"We must be prepared," says Pershing, "we will cease to exist as a nation." That is what the Kaiser said and Germany ceased to exist as far as he was concerned.—Seattle Union Record.
